

Noteworthy Quotes (continued)

- Don't prohibit what you don't provide. (Especially true with children.)
- Breaking a vow is hypocrisy.
- Cancel your debts to receive your rewards.
- Never place impulse over faith.
- A Bible command never warrants a vote.
- Whenever God's will is put up for a vote, God's will is voted down.
- Everything this side of hell is mercy and grace.
- We shouldn't thank God because everything is good, but because He is good.
- The remedy for fear is faith.
- One victory does not cure unbelief.
- Miracles do not produce faith.
- Music and entertainment are no substitute for God's Word.
- Many believers heads are filled with truth, but their lives are devoid of Spirit fulness.
- Heresy is simply truth out of balance.
- Biblical unity is based on truth - not experience.
- Love without truth leads to emotionalism and heresy.
- Some preaching binds people to a man - great preaching binds men to God.
- Your lifestyle can neutralize your witness.
- God can do the impossible with the improbable.
- In effective ministry there must be a connection between duty and love.
- Those who look for what they can get instead of what they can give soon drop out.
- Instead of asking "Why me?" we should ask "Why not me?"
- If God exempted His children from trouble everyone would sign up for salvation for the wrong reason.
- We prove our love for Him by our positive response to trouble.
- Compromise of principle or conviction is sin.
- The path of least resistance is usually wrong.
- Giving up is not an option.
- What we do in inconsistency our children or grandchildren may adopt as a lifestyle.
- Inconsistency will cause others to propagate what we preach against.
- The progression of apostasy is inconsistency, then compromise, and finally unbelief.
- We teach more by our consistency than by our convictions.
- Learn to love what the Lord loves, and hate what He hates.
- Satan never reveals the end of our actions.
- There are no church buildings in the Bible, so that is not where our priority should be.
- God's children find goodness in affliction if they do not rebel against it.
- Afflictions are designed for our profit, not our pleasure.
- Whatever causes our love for God to be diminished or distracted, He is jealous over.